Poetry.

From the Chicago Advance.

Growing Old.

One by one they are passing away—
The old of our town—to their final rest;
With reverence fashion the pillow of clay,
And pile up the clay on the quiet breast,
That pillow is soft to the time-worn head,
The load is light to the aged dead.

They have borne their burden of joys and pains;
They have had their portion of hopes and fears;
They have wrought out their work, they have gained their gains—
They have smiled their smiles—they have wept their tears,
It is over now!—the record close,
And leave them there, to their long repose.

Speak of them gently!—remembering well,
They were children of earth, as we are now;
They strove with temptation—they yielded and fell—
And, anon, they conquered, as we still do,
Their history is what ours shall be,
Speak of them, think of them, tenderly.

But few remain; and when they are gone,
We shall fill places which they now hold;
Our heads will be frosted—our bosoms be lone,
Even our hearts will grow tame and cold;
And the faltering step, and the failing breath
Will remind us, too, of approaching death.

Rivalry, coldness, worldliness pride—
Why should we yield to their baleful thrall?
Let us clasp hands closer, as downward we glide
Into the shadow that waits for us all;
For soon we shall be among the old,
And the days of our years will soon be told.

MRS. SARAH E. HENSHAW.

A COLLECTION of "Temperance Hymns," published in England, contains the following stanzas, in the sentiment embodied in which all well disposed persons will cordially agree:

If cider, brandy, and logwood,
With drugs of all degrees,
Can do the human system good
By driving out disease;
If sugar o'-lead and beet-root juice,
With opium combined,
Compose a draught of healing use
To sick and sore mankind;
Then use it ye, with hope and fear,
Who in affliction pine,
But in the name of all that's dear
Don't call that mixture wine.

THE French have discovered that the white of an egg given in sweetened water is a sure cure for the croup. The remedy is to be repeated till a cure is effected.

BLOW ye the trumpet, blow,
The scarce expected sound;
Let all the traitors know,
To earth's remotest bound,
That Johnson's jubilee has come,
Return, ye sneaking rebels home.

Miscellaneous.

THE VILLAGE SEWING CIRCLE.

BY CHRISTINE H. CARPENTER.

A drowsy summer afternoon hung over the little village of Maysville, nestling among the green Connecticut hills. The leaves of the clustering vines framing the pretty white cottages just stirred in the sunshine, while even the bees and butterflies crept to shelter in the hearts of the great red and white roses, faintly nodding to some occasional zephyr as it languished by. From the open windows of widow May's 'best room' a hum of voices stole out upon the scented air, and within, more than a score of busy hands fashioned divers fabrics into fair shapliness. It was the weekly sewing-circle of the Maysville church, for which a fair was in prospect, a fact that formed the secret of this feminine conclave. Who ever saw a sewing-circle without its little tibits of gossip? This was no exception to the rule. Presently a cherry face looked up from its owner's glancing needle:

"Do you know," said she to her neighbor, "that I've quite altered my opininion of Mrs. Wells, lately? Pray don't start—she has not arrived yet."

"How is that? You used to think her the most extravagant woman in the village, and I'm not sure but you were quite right. To my certain knowledge she wears the most new dresses, new bonnets, and so costly, to say nothing of the style in which those children of hers are primped up! You don't pretend to imagine her husband can stand it so much better than others I might mention?"

"Oh! no; Mr. Wells is not rich—only comfortable."

"I can't afford two new dresses to my neighbor's one."

"Maybe you don't know how to economize."

"Economize! I'd like you to point out another woman in Maysville who can stretch out a dollar further'n I can!"

"Yes I can do it."

"Just tell me and I'll take a lesson right off."

"You might profit by it, too, as I have'

"Do tell!"

"It's Mrs. Wells."

"MRS WELLS! That does beat my time—to set her up as my model! Now, I dare say, if one really knew, she spends just three time as much."

"No she doesn't, nor in fact any more than you do."

"Oh, nonsense! How do you get over the four bonnets, and the dresses and fancy furbelows one always sees about her? The little maiden shook her head sagaciously. No, no, Mrs. Brown, I calculate the whole matter in plain figures. Now for instance: There were my two bonnets last year. Ned thought as how I should have something better than the hideous things Miss Smith gets up in the village so I went to New York. Well, there two days lost just going and coming at the very time I was most wanted. I tred myself almost to death looking for something reasonable, and at last had to take the nearest to my means. I thought it would do well enough till I got home, and Mrs. Wells called on me next day with the very loveliest bonnet on her head I ever saw. It never cost less than twenty-five dollars in the city. I mean that grey velvet she had last fall."

"I know all about it. It didn't cost but six dollars, and it didn't come from the city."

"Six dollars! You must be dreaming! And where, in the name of creation, could any one get such a bonnet in Maysville? Then again, when I was in the city I saw a dress something like that blue merino of Susie Wells' everybody liked so much. I thought I'd enough left to buy it for Ada. I knew the stuff wasn't more than fourteen shillings a yard, and it takes just four yards; but besides, there was the making and trimming. I went in and priced it. It was eighteen dollars."

"And Susie Wells' cost her mother only about nine."

"That beats me out and out. Where does she go to get such bargains?"

"Not very often out of Maysville."

"Why, I never see them. When I go to Miss Smith for anything new, most likely it's some notion she's borrowed from the Wellses. I do believe they set the fashions for this village for dressmakers and all."

"Well Mrs. Wells can do it if she likes, for the truth is, she has a sure guide. This is the secret."

"Do tell!" suspending her work to listen.

"Yes, and what's more, Mrs. Wells doesn't buy half those new things ready-made; she makes them herself."

"Oh! it's all gumption, then I never had any."

"No, not that alone. I went down to the house yesterday to take tea, and we got chatting, and somehow we came to talk about economy, and I said I didn't see how some folks managed to make such a show, when others doing quite as well in the world, couldn't. 'Now you don't mean me?' said Mrs. Wells, laughing. 'Why, yes,' said I bluntly: 'I do; I can tell you, Mrs. Wells,' I went on, 'Maysville people do think you are awful extravagant.' 'Why?' said she. 'Because you have so many new things, and made so costly, and the children are always furbelowed enough to cost a small fortune. 'Now, I'll warant,' said she, 'that all mine and the children's new things together don't cost me any more than yours, or any other family in the village as large as mine.' 'Why, how is that?' said I. 'Because I make every penny tell, and just because I've got an invaluable aid to give me the very best of advice, and keep me acquainted with the newest fashions. It furnishes patterns and ideas, and tells what to get, and how to make up, so explicitly, that a body can't help understanding. I save all the cost and trouble of going to the city, for all I have to do is to consult my mentor for shape, style and material. Past experience has proved to me that I can rely upon it without a fear, and it is always full a month in advance, so that I have plenty of time for consideration. Send for the necessary articles, and there are the directions to make up. And, besides, I have the pleasure of always feeling fresh and presentable. I can always dress my children well and tastefully, because I spare myself one great expense, that of giving them out to be made, as I have within my reach such practical instructions, that it is a delight to connive and fashion for myself. Then I'm never at a loss for the boys either. If my means are limited, there is sure to occur an idea that helps me make a cheap suit come out quite jaunty and becoming. There are a hundred and one other notions to add effect to a toilet; how to cut and ornoment dresses, aprons, sacks, jackets, or any of the indispensables in a well-regulated wardrobe, even to under-clothing. It puts to use all the old ends of materials one may have. Nothing can go to waste.' 'I wish you would take pity on me,' said I 'and put me on the right track, for I've got tired of pinching and screwing to no purpose.' With all my heart. I'm afraid you have always been, like many others, a penny wise and a pound foolish; but you have only to send three dollars, and purchase a year's subscription to DEMOREST'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE. That is the aid, counselor, and helpmate I've been telling you of."

At this juncture Mrs. Brown chanced to glance out of the window. "I have just finished my story in time," said she, her voice subsiding. "There is Mrs. Wells coming up the garden path; you shall have her own testimony."

Bonnet and mantle disposed of, and work in hand, the new-comer was prepared for the consultation by an active rehearsal from Mrs. Brown of a portion of her own and her neighbor's recent discourse. Mrs. Wells's entrance had been the signal for the resolving of the several little groups of talkers into a general conversation. Not a few listened anxiously for her sentence upon Mrs. Brown's narrative.

"I am quite prepared to endorse all I said yesterday," returned she at its conclusion, smilingly surveying her auditors, "and I can even say more." Mrs. Brown kindly complimented me yesterday upon the arrangements of my table, and more than one of you praised the trifles in the way of pastry and other refreshments I contributed to the refreshment table of our last year's fair. The household department of the MAGAZINE was my guide; it is especially devoted to items of interest to housekeepers. You have seen such practical illustrations of the value of its various receipts, that I need scarcely dwell upon it."

"Where did you learn of the existence of your oracle?" questioned Mrs. Hart.

"I read of it in the village paper."

"Oh, we don't take that."

"Not take the Maysville Times? I'm surprised. Why, it's to every one's interest to take the local papers. I should as lief be out of the world as to be without the news. My husband says he sets as much store by them as I do by my Demorest's Monthly. That must have been the reason why Mr. Wells did so much better by his grain and hay than Mr. Hart. You see he had the advantage of knowing how to sell, and when and where to find a good customer, and all this through the paper, while neighbor Hart, even though he's quite as shrewd at bargaining, had to trust to luck after all. Mr. Wells says he finds so many items of use to him about gardening, and then there are the quotations from the city markets. It won't do to trust to hearsay. You want a reliable source for such information. We watch the paper, and are generally just about right for a very good sale. Just make a trial of it, and if you don't confess that you wonder how you ever did without it, I'll pay your subscription."

Before any one could reply there was a slight stir at the doorway, and the next moment a chorus of voices welcomed the good shepard of the Maysville flock among his people.

"What have you there?" said Jennie Kip, the pet and belle par excellence of the village, as, after the greetings were over, the reverend gentleman sat down before the table and began divesting a small packet he had carried of its wrapping.

"Something that I fancied might be of use and interest to you ladies in the pursuance of your good work; Demorest's Monthly Magazine." There was a rapid interchange of glances among the needle-workers.

"I thought you disapproved of light reading," ventured Miss Kip mischievously.

"So I do except when, like the literary department of this Magazine, it is instructive, entertaining, and calculated to exert a strong moral influence over our minds. This Monthly is a great favorite at the parsonage. I am a regular subscriber, for I scarcely think we could do without it. What I presumed might be of special service now, was this department of fashions, about which I know but little, but which my wife affirms always contains the most valuable suggestions respecting wearing apparel."

"I have just been testifying to that before you came in," remarked Mrs. Wells. "And I remember a recomendation from a friend of mine in Greenfield. Her husband is a builder, and she writes me he is laeding the Architectural Department of the Magazine. He considers this feature alone renders it valuable, because its plans and diagrams are good and adaptable. My children hail its appearance quite as gladly as I do. I read aloud to them from its literary portion, because I find its general tone so pure and elevating. I think it a desirable addition to every household in Maysville."

"And I," chimed in the minister. "My boys and girls take special delight in its engravings. It has inculcated a taste for art among them. I think its refining influence, the variety it combines, and its neat dress, render it an ornament for any parlor-table in the village."

"Any one of its peculiarities—its full sized patterns, its braid and embroidery sheets, or twelve excellent sheets of music—is worth far more than the cost of a year's subscription," suggested Mrs. Wells. "And besides all this, each subscriber receives a valuable premium."

"I shall subscribe," exclaimed Mrs. Brown.

"And I," said her neighbor.

The words were echoed from all parts of the room.

"Why not make up a club," suggested the pastor, "and give your order to Mrs. Wells?"

"I should like that very much," resumed the latter. "I will tell you why, frankly. There are great inducements offered for this purpose. For twenty subscriptions at three dollars each, while every individual receives a premium, I should come into possession of a FAMILY SEWING-MACHINE. Such a treasure!"

"You are quite deserving of such a price, as the first to establish the merits of the Magazine here," said several. In a few short weeks Mrs. Wells's sitting-room boasted of a sewing-machine, and each member of the club a copy of the magazine.

"How do you like it—how do you like it?" asked the various Maysvillelites, as they met after this important event. "It has all the virtues claimed for it. The fashion gossip offers really new and acceptable ideas, because they emanate from the actual depot of the metropolitan modes, and are not revised and garbed-over rehash of old styles. It is, in truth, an actual 'mirror of fashions.'

Soon so said all Maysville, except Miss Smith, who had hitherto been quite successful in palming off her antiquated styles upon the villagers, and who now found her "occupation gone."

"What shall I do?" said she wringing her hands in despair, to a sympathizing, gentle soul, who chaneed to be a member of Mrs. Wells's club.

"I can not say, unless you take Demorest's Monthly Magazine, when you will be likely to find suggestions to help you out of your difficulty, as I most always do in my own case. Miss Smith you had better think of it."

The result of this council was that Miss Smith sent in her subscription.

Early one bright Monday morning the good people of Maysville remarked that a marvelous change had come over the millinery and dress-making establishment they had of late almost ignored.

"How beautifully you have fitted up, Miss Smith," said her friend, who had been invited to take a look within.

"I've started anew as a branch of Mme. Demorest's Emporium of fashions, the headquarters of Demorest's Monthly. I'm very thankful to you for mentioning the magazine to me, you see it has helped me out of my trouble."

"How did you prosper?" asked the friend, some time later in the month, "dropping in" to see if Miss Smith's hopes had been realized.

"Oh, I never did so well! Why, I can work with so much satisfaction to myself and every one of my customers, and I have such a variety of beautiful styles that even the ladies from the city, boarding hereabouts, find all they require."

Time flitted swiftly by, and again the sewing-circle had met at Widow Mays.

"What a vast improvement there has been in our village since we have taken Demorest's Monthly!" exclaimed Mrs. Brown, during a pause in the conversation. 'Mrs. Hart, did you take Mrs. Wells's advice and subscribe for the village paper.'

'Yes, and I must say, it was just as she said—Mr. Hart and I have resolved never to do without it again. He thinks it saves him a great deal more than his false notion of economy ever did.'

'That is my opinion of the Magazine. Besides we are certainly all brighter, and better, and happier, and wiser through its influence. It is the general remark. There is now one thing for which I have a great ambition. That is, to make up a club large enough to get, as a premium an organ for the church. I have already set about it by applying to some of my friends. I find I have only to show a copy of the Monthly to convince them of its merits. It speaks for itself, and they have been so enthusiastic in their appreciation as to set their names down upon my list immediately. Will any of you aid me?"

Every voice chimed in assent. As women always do when they have a pet project at heart, they went to work with will and energy, and found their task so easy, that in a few days the entire subscription was on its journey to the Publishers of Demorest's Monthly, No. 838 Broadway, New-York.

A Lady Buried Alive.

New Orleans Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

I have just heard of one of the most heart-rending, and yet unavoidable affairs, which it has ever been my lot to record. It is nothing more nor less than the frightful reality of being buried alive. A most estimable lady, Mrs. Crane, whose husband is bookkeeping in Flemming & Co.'s drug store, in this city, died suddenly last July of what was pronounced sunstroke. She was a school teacher in one of our most popular schools. In the afternoon, after school was out, she went to visit a neighbor on Felicity street, and just as she entered her friend's house she fell insensible and expired, to all appearance, in about two minutes, the doctor pronouncing it sunstroke. Her body was interred the next day at ten o'clock, and her mother, an old lady about fifty years of age, and her husband and one little son, went home almost broken-hearted, and have since been nearly distracted, being at times unable to sleep, and, in fact, leading a most miserable and disconsolate life; and well they might, as the sequel will show, had they known what they had done. Well, one night last week the mother, after passing a most distressing day, fell asleep late at night and dreamed that her daughter had been buried alive. She jumped up in a frantic state, and rushed to her son-in-law's chamber, crying, "My daughter is buried alive! Oh, my daughter is buried alive! What shall I do!" To sleep any more that night was out of the question; she still crying that her daughter was buried alive, whenever her son-in-law would try to quiet her. At length the proposition was made to have the body disieterred, just to satisfy her. So early the next morning the grave was opened and the coffin raised. Oh, what a horrible sight met their view! Pen is powerless to portray the scene which followed. The body, which had been placed in a metallic coffin, was turned over, the glass covering the face was broken to atoms, the ends of her fingers being beaten and battered to pieces; her hair torn out in handfulls, and her shroud torn in many pieces—all presenting the appearance of the most desperate struggles to free herself from her terrible misfortune.

If any of your readers could have seen the relatives of this unfortunate lady, when this condition of what they supposed was the perpetual silent tomb had been brought to light, it would have forced a tear from the most stolid and adamantine heart. It was one of the most distressing affairs ever recorded in this State, and I sincerely trust it will be the last I am ever called upon to record.

SOME one says the World first nominated Grant for President. Perhaps so, but it was the flesh and the "other feller" that elected him.—Free Press.

Parental Fault-Finding.

Do not be continually finding fault. It is at times necessary to censure and punish. But very much may be done by encouraging children when they do well. Be ever more careful to express your approbation of good conduct than disapprobation of bad. Nothing can more discourage a child than a spirit of incessant fault-finding on the part of its parents. And hardly anything can exert a more injurious influence upon the disposition both of the parents and the child. There are two great motives influencing human action, hope and fear. But who would not prefer to have a child influenced to good conduct by the desire of pleasing, rather than by the fear of offending? If a mother never expressed her gratification when her children do well, and is always censuring when she sees anything amiss, they are discouraged and unhappy. They feel there is no use in trying to please. Their disposition becomes hardened and soured by this ceaseless fretting. At last, finding that, whether they do well or ill, they are equally found fault with, they relinquish all efforts to please and become heedless of reproaches.

But let a mother approve of a child's conduct whenever she can. Let her show that his behavior makes her sincerely happy. Let her reward him for his efforts to please, by smiles and affection. In this way she will cherish in her child's heart some of the noblest and most desirable feelings of our nature. She will cultivate in him an amiable dispositon and a cheerful spirit. Your child has been during the day very pleasant and obedient. Just before putting him asleep for the night, you take his hand and say, "My son, you have been a very good boy to-day. It makes me very happy to see you so kind and obedient. God loves little children who are dutiful to their parents, and He promises to make them happy." This approbation from his mother is to him a great reward. And when with more than ordinary affectionate tone, you say, "Good night, my dear son," he leaves the room with a heart full of feeling. And when he closes his eyes for sleep, he is happy, and resolves that he will always try to do his duty.—J. S. C. Abbott.

A Matrimonial Legend.

I stopped at the Sherman House in Chicago lately. They gave a room there, away up. I do not know exactly how high, but water boils up there at 163 deg. I went up in a dumb waiter which was attached to a baloon. It was not a suitable place for a bedchamber, but it was a promising altitude for an observatory. The furniture consisted of a table, a camp stool, a washbowl, a German dictionary, and a patent medicine almanac for 1842. I do not know whether there was a bed or not—I didn't notice. However, I was glad I got that room, for I stayed there an hour, and took notes of an instructive conversation which was going on in an adjoining apartment. I overheard the following legend:

"No, she wouldn't marry me. You were misinformed. It was broken off, and in the saddest way. I was not in the least to blame, upon my word and honor, though neither the girl nor her father, the deacon, ever believed me, or ever forgave me. It was during the big election canvass, when Lincoln ran the first time. Two-thirds of the deacon's honest soul were in religion, and the other third was in politics—Lincoln man. I never was a scoffer at religion in my life, but he half believed I was. Well, there was to be a political powwow in the village church where he lived, on a Thursday night, and he was to preside. I never thought anything about the matter, but Williams hailed me one afternoon offered me a seat in his buggy, and away we started. It was Wednesday—curse the almanac, but we never thought of it. Going into town, some devilish instinct put it into my head that it would help my case along if I marched into church with a rail on my shoulder, seeing that the deacon and the girl would both be there. So I got a rail and we came into town shouting and making a grand to do generally. As we went by the church windows I caught a glimpse of her bonnet and plenty other bonnets, and I was happy. I shouldered my rail and marched in. The houseful of men and women were all quiet, and the old deacon was up in the altar saying something. Splendid! I went a booming up the aisle with my rail, swinging my hat and whooping:

"Hoo-ray for Old Abe—hoo-ray for the Illinois rail-splitter."

But never a yelp out of that audience. I quit right in my tracks. The deacon said:

"Sir, we were engaged in addressing the Throne of Grace. This unseemly exhibition is ill-fitted to the solemnities of a prayer-meeting."

I never felt so sick in my life, John. I never felt so much like taking a walk. And don't you know, as I stood up there before that congregation, I'd have given a million dollars for somebody to take that rail out for me. But no, I had to sneak out with it myself. I threw it down, and went up to where there was a board fence, and practiced climbing backward and forward through a knot-hole for as much as an hour. But my goose was cooked, you know. It was all up between me and that family."

And so endeth the legend. Perhaps I had no right to listen to it, but I did, anyho w.—Mark Twain.

The Commercial.

Free to Do Right—to Do Wrong, Never.

YPSILANTI,.....DEC. 26, 1868.

The New Year.

Standing on the threshold of a new year, we bid good bye forever for 1868. We shall never see its hours, days and months again. The close of a year is memory's resurrection hour. Memory gives up her dead. From her secret cells issue a thousand buried deeds to life again. The half-raised tablets glow anew with lines traced during the year and perhaps years long ago and long forgotten, and as the tide of thought, a mingled one of sorrow, joy, regret, comes rushing on, how does its heavings beat against our temples, as does the shut up sea, against its prison walls. The signal for the soul's review, repentance for the past and amendment for the future. Inspiring motives to work while it is yet called "To-day." We wish all our readers happy new year, and may God grant us all grace to follow out the exhortation of Tennyson, in the following verses:

Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring, happy bells, across the snow!
The year is going, let him go:
Ring out the false, ring in the true!

Ring out false pride in place and blood,
The civic slander and the spite;
Ring in the love of truth and right;
Ring in the common love of good!

Ring out old shapes of foul disease,
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold,
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace!

Ring in the valliant man and free,
The larger heart, the kindlier hand:
Ring out the darkness of the land:
Ring in the Christ that is to be!

THE LEGAL TENDER ACT.

Gentlemen who live—and live well, too—by manufacturing news at Washington for the daily journals, have been busy recently with the probable fate of the legal tender act; as the question of the constitutionality of that act is now before the U. S. Supreme Court, which is expected to give a dicision in a few weeks, if not in a few days. They assure us, some of them, that a majority of the justices will pronounce the act unconstitutional. Others, not to be outdone as sensational newsmongers,—or, rather, from a desire to outdo their associates,—go so far as to assert, with all the positiveness of ignorance, that only one member of the court will say that the act is constitutional. This exception must be the Chief Justice, Mr. Chase, who can be expected to sustain the act, seeing that it is his own work, in point of fact, though nominally it is the work of Congress. He was Secretary of the Treasury when the act was passed, and his friends for long claimed for him the highest possible reputation as a financier, because of what then was done, including the new banking law and the issue of greenbacks; that issue being compared to a fertilizing shower, which excites production and stimulates to industry. His claims to the presidency were founded on his skill in finance; and if the measures thus founded upon should be declared, by the very court of which he is head, to be unconstitutional, his reputation must suffer to the same extent that it was formerly exalted.

We place very little faith in the story that the Supreme Court will pronounce the legal tender act unconstitutional—not so much because we believe that act to be of doubtful character, but because we do believe that gentlemen who hold the highest and gravest places in the land are not in the habit of making confidents of men whose business it is to make public all they hear and see, and all that they can guess at, or invent, or imagine. Lawyers are shy of newsmen, and what the ordinary lawyer is to other men, that the judge is to the ordinary lawyer; our judges are not perfect men, but they are not quite so imperfect as to communicate in advance their judicial opinions to themost noisy, busy, prying, inquisitive men on face of the earth. They the are gentlemen, and there is no reason for supposing them to be wanting in common honesty, and it would be the height of indecorum, as well as the depth of dishonesty, were they to inform newsmongers of their intention in regard to a measure of the most vital importance, the arguments concerning which they have not heard, and their action on which is likely to have prodigious effect on the interests of millions of men. The legal tender act may be condemned, but those who assert that it will be, really know no more about the matter than they do about the next decision that will be made in the English Court of Chancery.

What would be the effect of a decision that the legal tender act is unconstitutional? The question is a difficult one to answer in full. One effect would be to put a stop to the use of our present paper currency. The greenbacks would cease to circulate, and their holders would have to exchange them for national bonds, principal and interest to be paid in gold. The exchange would not be a bad one, for a currency dollar now is worth only about seventy-five cents, whereas it would be worth its face should it be converted into stock, as it could be as the hundreth part of a share. The notes of the banks would be good or bad, according to the extent of the power of the institutions issuing them, to redeem them in gold on presentation. The old banking system, it is supposable, would revive again, as the present would seem to be inextricably involved with the national currency, or greenbacks, and would, if this view is right, necessarily be involved in its fall. All payments made since the legal tender act went into operation, on account of debts of corresponding date, would, it is believed, stand good in law; but all payments made in depreciated paper of debts contracted before the legal tender act was passed, would be of no farther legal force than as the paper used represented money. For instance: If in 1863 Mr. A. paid a debt to Mr. B., contracted before suspension took place, and paper at the time such payment was made was worth only three-fourths of the amount of gold it professed to represent, Mr. B. could recover the difference with interest. As it is notorious that many debts were paid in the manner mentioned, much against the wishes of creditors—gold being sold, and perhaps only half the amount received for it being used to clear off mortgages, and so forth—it is obvious that there would be much work for lawyers, unless the debtor class should admit judgment at once, and pay what they really would owe under a decision that the legal tender act is unconstitutional. There would be considerable excitement immediatly after the promulgation of such a decision, but it would not last long; and the country with its usual elasticity, would soon conform to the new state of things—and prosper under it, as usual.—Watchman & Reflector.

Gen. Grant's Policy.

A Senator of the United States called on Gen. Grant to-day and asked a favor, which the General declined to grant, because it was impossible. The Senator remarked that he was going away, and would not return for some weeks. The General replied that he was sorry he was going, but if he was in favor of expending any more money from the Government Treasury to aid Pacific or other railways, he hoped that he would go and stay away. Several members of Congress were present, and a brief discussion ensued on the subject of Government subsidies to railroads and other corporations. The President elect spoke with emphasis against any further aid being given to the Pacific Railroads. He said, substantially, it was very apparent to every man in the country that our finances needed the closest attention, and that it is vitally important, if we intend to pay off the national debt and lighten taxation, to practice the most rigid economy, and the place to begin with is the bills that are pending in Congress granting further subsidies to the Pacific and other Railroads. No matter what may be said about the prospective benefit we are to derive from these roads, it is too long to wait, and we should make the best possible use of our present resources, without increasing the burden of our debt by incurring expensive risks which are hazardous. The Congressmen who were at the interview were astonished at the frankness with which the General expressed his views, while they one and all pledged him their support. —N. Y. Tribune.

Senator Chandler.

The following endorsement of Senator Chandler, from the Providence, (R. I.) Journal, is from the pen of Senator Anthony who has known Mr. Chandler well, for years. It will be seen that he declares the personal attacks upon Senator Chandler to be untrue and unjustified:

It seems to be conceded that Michigan will return to the Senate Mr. Chandler, who has, for 12 years, represented the State with marked zeal and ability. Mr. Chandler is one of the most earnest and energetic of the Republican leaders, and his place is always in the advance guard of the party. A man of busines, familiar with the operations of trade, and commerce and banking, he brings to the public service the sagacity and practical information conspicious in the accumulation of the large private fortune which enables him to dispense an elegant hospitality, that not only embellishes his position, but adds to its influence. As the chairman of the important committee on commerce he has rendered services that must be especially appreciated by a State surrounded by the great inland waters, and demanding improvememts, for the extension of its commerce and the security of its navigation. No new man can fill that place. One of the most conspicuous and boldest of Mr. Chandler's acts in the Senate, was his exposure of the blunders, the delays, and the bad generalship, by which McClellan was wasting away our finest army, and imperiling the cause of the Union. By his speech, on that occasion, Mr. Chandler brought upon himself much criticism, for at the time McClellan still stood high in the public estimation, and had a strong hold upon the affections of the army. But fortified by the facts that had come to his knowledge as a member of the Committee on the Conduct of the War, he deemed it a public duty to call the attention of the country to the enormous risks which it was incurring by the continuance of General McClellan at the head of the army. Few, except military critics of the class who labored during the Presidential campaign to prove that Grant was no General, will now question the course that Mr. Chandler then took.

It would be strange if a man so positive in his opinions, and so outspoken in his utterences, should escape those personal assaults which, to the disgrace of our politics, are made upon almost every public man who raises himself high enough to attract them. These are as untrue and shameful in this as in many others, and of a little consequence to him. Indeed slanders of this sort seldom injure a public man. They are annoying mainly because they distress a man's family, and are often dictated by the spirit of "I can't whip you; but I can make faces at your sister;" and they are often made for purposes of black mail. If attacks of this kind have not often been more bitter, they have seldom been more harmless than we are confident this will prove in this instance.

Advertising.

The country is full of men who have got rich by advertising. In fact, no man expects now to keep his business running without informing the people what he is doing, and where he can be found. The people cannot afford to spend the time to hunt up places of business and trade. They have been so long accustomed to gaining that information from newspapers, that they depend upon that source altogether, and govern their trade from what they learn and read at their homes and by and by their own firesides. A lively advertisement is a friendly talk between business men and their customers. It is a weekly invitation for people to come and trade. And every mail day, the leaders of a local paper expect to see and hear what the merchants, the manufactures and the tradesmen have to say. A local newspaper is a travelling agent, taking his weekly round to the families of all their customers. No matter whether trade is brisk or dull; no business man can afford to take down his sign, nor withdraw the pleasing influence of a weekly chat with his customers through the newspapers. For a business man to stop advertising, would be equivalent to his saying, I have stopped business and ask no more favors of the people.—Montello Express.

From the National Intelligencer, (Democratic.)

THE Detroit Free Press, in an article reciting the elements of opposition to his re-election, conveys the idea that it is an assured thing. We observe that numerous Radical presses of the Northwest are stepping out of their bailiwick to oppose him. This upon personal grounds which, we are glad to say, are not endorsed by the Democratic press. If Mr. Chandler is the enemy of Conservatism, he has the political virture of making known to his opponents where he is, or what is his position.

There is no mistake about it, Plantation Bitters will ward off Fever and Ague and kindred diseases, if used in time. No family need suffer from this distressing complaint if they will keep Plantation Bitters in the house, and use it according to directions. The most important ingredient of this medicine is Calisaya or Peruvian Bark, which is known to be the finest and purest tonic in the vegetable kingdom. The extract of this Bark is the active principle of all the good Fever and Ague medicines prescribed by intelligent doctors. Calisaya Bark is used extensively in the manufaeture of Plantation Bitters, as well as quinine, and we dare say they owe their popularity mostly to that fact. We can recommend them.

MANY years ago the writer of this notice and an invalid physician, while visiting the Island of St. Croix for their health, experienced and witnessed many surprising and beneficial effects of the Rum there produced upon many of the invalids who were, like ourselves, seeking health, and upon inquiry and investigation, obtained a full history of its medicinal virtues. He was delighted and surprised, and determined to make it the basis of a Tonic and Restoratiue Medicine. The result of his labors was a glorious success for himself and suffering humanity. The celebrated PLANTATION BITTERS was thus made known to the world. Being an article of real merit, founded on new principles, and relying wholly upon the vegetable kingdom for its medicinal effects, it worked a rapid revolution in the treatment of physical debility.

HEARTH and HOME is a weekly illustrated agricultural and fireside journal of sixteen handsome pages, devoted to the interests of farmers, gardeners, fruit-growers, and florists. Edited by Mr. Donald G. Mitchell, assisted by a large corps of practical agriculturists. The fireside department edited by Harriet Beecher Stowe, assisted by Mrs. Mary E. Dodge, with Grace Greenwood, Madame Le Vert and other able contributors. Terms for 1869: Single copies $4, invariably in advance; 3 copies $10; 5 copies $15. Any one sending us $45 for a club of 15 copies (all at one time), will receive a copy free. A specimen copy of the first number sent free. Address PETTENGILL, BATES & Co., publishers, 37 Park Row, New York.

BAD PRACTICE.—You might as well expect to relieve and cure an inflamed eye by dusting irritating powders into it as to expect to subdue and cure Catarrh (which is an inflamation of the mucus membrane of the air passages in the head) by the use of irritating snuffs or strong, caustic solutions. Dr. Sage's catarrh remedy cures catarrh by its mild, soothing action which subdues the inflammation and restores the natural secretion of the mucous follicies. It is a pleasant remedy, its use being attended and followed by a cooling and agreeable sensation. The proprietor, R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., offers $500 for a case of catarrh that he can not cure. Sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents. Address the proprietor as above.

A. M., S. 2,—All must surrender to Constitution Bitters, for their is no concealing the fact that they are taking the lead of all other bitters, and are destined to become as famous and popular as any medicinal preparation in use. All unite in praising them, and when the people decide in favor of any thing of the kind, they are generally right. We are lately meeting a good many who are using the Constitution, and it does us good to see how healthy and ruddy they look, and they all attribute it to the use of Constitution Bitters. We would advise you all to take no other.

TO PHYSICIANS,
NEW-YORK, August 15th, 1867.
Allow me to call your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, Long Leaf, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.
MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu in vacuo, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement by liquor obtained from Juniper Berries, containing very little sugar, a small proportion of spirit, and more palatable than any now in use. The active properties are by this mode extracted.
Buchu, as prepared by Druggists generally is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this [its active principle] leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates: the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exists. In this you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.
Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation.
With a feeling of confidence,
I am very respectfully,
H. T. HEMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist, of 16 years experience in Philadelphia, and now located at his Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway, New-York.
[From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.]
"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Hembold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise.
WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN,
Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Sts., Philadelphia
HEMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU, for weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil, in fact Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.
The Constitution, once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMCOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or Insanity ensues.
HELMBOLD'S FFUID EXTRACT BUCHU, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequaled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus state of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from habits of dissipation, imprudence in, or the decline or change of life.
HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.
Use HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.
Those suffering from broken down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.
The reader must be aware that however slightly may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.
All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.
Sold by druggists and Dealers everywhere. Price $1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50, delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.
Address H. T. HELMBOLD, Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway, N. Y.
None are genuine unless done up in steel engraved wrapper, with fac-simile of my Chemical Warehouse, and signed
Dec&Jan, H. T. HELMBOLD.

Local Matters.

Holidays.

We are trying to take the Holidays easy, especially this number. Going on nearly five years now, sick or well, at home or abroad, no number of the paper has been issued that we have not written for its columns more or less. This week we propose to make up for Locals and Editorials, by a liberal use of the scisors.

The Ypsilanti Pulpit.

Rev. Mr. Hinton addressed the friends of the bible and bible circulation at the Presbyterian Church, last sabbath evening. It was a stirring address. Messrs Tindall and Gardner, also happily addressed the people.

Rev. Mr. Bainbridge of Erie, Penn., preached two able sermons to large and deeply interested audiances at the Baptist Church. In the morning, from the text, "Jesus Christ yesterday, to day and forever." It was a most graphic description of the transitory nature of all earthly objects and the enduring basis of Christ's word, his kingdom on earth and in the hearts of men. In the evening—"He that winneth souls is wise." By happy illustrations he unfolded the value of the soul to be won, and the best methods of winning. Closing by entreating the sinner to no longer refuse to be won by the only methods God has revealed to man. Mr. Bainbridge remains over to-morrow, and will preach morning and evening. We hope that the Church and society will be able to secure him for a pastor. One is needed very much.

The Legislature,

Meets next Wednesday. Sen. Norris leaves Monday in order to attend to business in the Supreme Court. Hon. Mr. Shier will probably leave Tuesday. Several of our citizens interested in the Senatorial contest intend to go. The Republican Caucus will doubtless meet Wednesday Evening. The vote for Senator will nor be taken until the 2d Tuesday of the session.

Shall we have a Rail Road.

The proposed Rail Road from Tecumseh to our city ought to interest every citizen who owns Real Estate. Some persons object to a road on the ground that little villages on the line are built up and produce that would otherwise be marketed here, would stop at these points. Such an objection might have answered 50 years ago, but it is too late now. Rail Roads build up central points. Ypsilanti would receive four fold benefit to one drawback. Jackson and Kalamazoo, where roads cross the Central North and South, are steadily pushing ahead, the population almost doubling the last two years. Besides in this case it is a question, whether Ypsilanti or a neighboring city shall possess the advantages of a road crossing the Central. In case Ann Arbor gets the road the little towns will be built up all the same. Saline will become a central market. We shall have all the disadvantages of a road cutting the territory which looks to Ypsilanti largely as its place of business without a single compensating clause or benefit. The Argus made a strong appeal for the Ann Arbor road last week. We have a few thousand invested in property in this city. It is our all. We should cheerfully vote for a tax of $50,000, to build the proposed road. It would be worth to us more than a dozen iron bridges.

Normal Exercises.

We have a report from a friend, but it came to late for this issue. We issue Thursday in order to give our help a new year's holliday. They have been working hard to accomplish it and deserve it.

Miss Eliza Shier,

Will lecture before the Ladies' Library Association, Wednesday Evening Jan. 6th. Subject "Vines, or woman mentally considered." We trust that there will be a large attendance. The lecturer is said to be a first class one, and the lecture of great merit and interest. The Ladies Association is certainly worthy the patronage of every citizen.

Bowles.

Mr. Bowles of the Springfield Republican was arrested by a creature, by the name of Fisk, in N. Y. City, for exposing his fraudulent methods of banking and rail road plotting. Mr. Bowles spent one night in Jail. But poor Fisk seems to be having the hardest of it, the Press without distinction of party, being down upon him and raking him fore and aft.

The Battle Creek Journal.

Comes to us enlarged and improved. We have always heard of Battle Creek as a wide awake, enterprising business town. The advertising columns of the Journal are proof of it. We rejoice in friend Willard's prosperity. At one time we seriously thought of buying the Journal and begin to believe that we were a fool for not doing it.

Instruction.

Do you wish instruction in music, or a piano, call on Mr. Walter Hewitt.

Demorest's Monthly Magvzine universally acknowledged the Model Parlor Magazine of America, devoted to Original Stories, Poems, Sketches, Household Matters, Gems of Thought, Personal and Literary Gossip (including special departments on Fashions), Instructions on Health, Music, Amusements, etc., by the best authors, and profusely Illustrated with costly engravings, useful and reliable Patterns, Embroideries, and a constant succession of artistic novelties, with other useful and entertaining literature.

No person of refinement, economical housewife, or lady of taste can afford to do without the Model Monthly. Specimen copies, 15 cents, mailed free. Yearly, $3, with a valuable premium; two copies, $5,50; three copies, $7,50; five copies, $12; and splendid premiums for clubs at $3 each, with the first premiums to each subscriber. ☞ A new Bartram and Fanton Sewing Machine for 20 subscribers at $3 each.

Publication Office, 838 Broadway, New-York.

Demorest's Monthly and Young America together $4, with the premium for each.

Prof. Pease.

We have recently issued the catologue of Enoch Arden, an Operetta in two parts. Libretto composed and compiled by E. L. Ripley, music by F. H. Pease. The professor is preparing to give our citizens the richest treat they have had in the way of musical concerts.

CITY ORDINANCE.

The Common Council of the city of Ypsilanti ordain:

That sections second and third of an Ordinance entitled an "Ordinance to prevent the obstruction of side-walks by snow, ice, etc.," be, and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 2d. "It shall be the duty of every owner or occupant of any house or other building, lot or piece of land. to clear all side-walks adjoining the same of all incumbrance or obstructions arising from snow, ice, hail, sleet or rain, before ten o'clock in the forenoon of each day, when so obstructed."

Sec. 3d. "In case of the failure of any owner or occupant of any house, building, lot or piece of land, to clear away any such incumbrance or obstruction as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Marshall of the city of Ypsilanti to proceed forthwith to remove such incumbrance or obstruction, keeping an accurate account of the expense of the same, which shall be defrayed from the general fund of the city; Provided, That the sum so expended shall not exceed ten dollars per annum upon sidewalks adjoining any one house, building, lot or piece of land. These amendments shall take immediate effect."

Made and passed in Common Council this 28th day of December, 1868.

J. WILLARD BABBITT, City Clerk.

We have been using Seward & Bentley's Alisma a few weeks, and have come to the conclusion that there is one preparation for the hair that is good. It is an elegant dressing, and makes the hair dark and glossy, giving it a lively appearance. It is not as expensive as an ordinary hair oil, and far better to use.

Seward's Cough Cure, has cured Asthma.

The talisman of fashion; the favorlte of beauty; the pet of luxury in every dressing room and boudoir, is "Barrett's Vegetable Hair Restorative." It is a sure preventive to baldness and premature gray hair, and no lady or gentleman should be without it.—St. Joseph Herald.

How often do you hear the complaint from mother and father that their son or daughter is not well; that they have no appetite; that they feel languid; that their head aches; that they are growing thin and feeble, and that they have no life or energy left. That they are low-spirited, and perfectly incapacitated to participate in any pleasures, or perform any mental or physical duty. And the question is often asked, what shall I do for them? or, what shall I give them? Our answer is let them try PLANTATION BITTERS moderately three times a day, and our word for it they will recover.

Magnolia Water.—Superior to the best imported German Cologne, and sold at half the price.

The American Cooking Stove.

Another Patent Suit.—We understand Messrs. Shear, Packard & Co. have been compelled to commence a suit against Hunt & Miller, of Hudson, for infringing the patent on the Ash Sifter in the American Cooking Stove. This is the fifth suit they have been compelled to bring against different parties for infringing the different patents on this Stove. The four previous suits have resulted favorably for S., P. & Co., and they are determined to follow up all cases of infringement until others cease from appropriating their improvements.—Albany Evening Journal, July 29th, 1868.

All persons are cautioned agianst selling or using Stoves with a Shaking Ash Sifter in the hearth, or under the grate, as this improvement is fully secured to us by five different Patents, and all persons selling or using Stoves with this improvement, will be liable to prosecution for infringement, as we have granted no licenses to other parties to make or sell this improvement, and all infringements will be promptly prosecuted.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. Price $1. 217-1y

A meritorious article.—We are tired of this idea of "puffing" humbug medicines that are constantly thrown into our drug stores, and are merely an imposition upon community. But, when an article comes into the market that is really worthy of comment, we are happy to make public acknowledgement, trusting that some benefit may arise therefrom. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and we take pleasure in calling attention to it because we know it to be a good article, and a sure cure for that loathsome disease, Catarrh. It is sold by most Druggists, or may be obtained for Sixty Cents through the mail by addressing the proprietor as above.—Cleveland Herald.

A. M. 1864, S. 2.—In the above year Seward & Bentley, Druggists, of Buffalo, N. Y., having observed the great demand for a good medicinal Bitter, and being satisfied that most, if not all the Bitters sold were not such as could be conscienciously recommended by the Physicians and Druggists, determined to prepare such an article so much needed by the debilitated. Selected such roots, barks and herbs as were known by the Profession to be really good, and combining them in a proper form, using only pure Rye Whisky for what spirits required, made the Bitters now celebrated as the Constitution Bitters. They are now being sold in all parts of the country, and are deserving the success they have everywhere attained.

The Great New-England Remedy!

DR. J. W. POLAND'S

WHITE PINE COMPOUND

IS now offered to the afflicted throughout the country, after having been proved by the test of thirteen years in the New-England States, where its merits have become as well known as the tree from which, in part, it derives its virtues.

THE WHITE PINE COMPOUND

CURES

Sore Throat, Colds, Coughs, Diphtheria, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and Pulmonary Affections generally. It is a Remarkable Remedy for Kidney Complaints, Diabetes, Difficulty of Voiding Urine, Bleeding from the Kidneys and Bladder, Gravel, and other Complaints.

(From the Boston Journal.)

BOSTON, Jan. 20, 1866.

POLAND'S WHITE PINE COMPOUND.—After having given it a thorough trial, we can confidently recommend Poland's White Pine Compound as a very valuable article for the cure of colds, coughs, and pulmonic complaints generally. In several cases, we have known it to give prompt relief when all other remedies which had been tried had failed. It is an article, which, in a climate so promotive of sudden and severe colds as is that of New England, ought to be in every family; and we are sure that those who once obtain it, and give it a fair trial, will not thereafter be willing to be without it.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE.—Dr. Poland's White Pine Compound, advertised in our columns, is a successful attempt to combine and apply the medicinal virtues of the White Pine bark. It has been thoroughly tested by people in this city and vicinity, and the proprietor has testimonials to its value from persons well known to our citizens. We recommend its trial in all those cases of disease to which it is adapted. It is for sale by all our druggists.—N. Y. Independent.

The White Pine Compound is now sold in every part of the United States and British Provinces.

How to be Miserable.

Sit by a window and look over the way to your neighbor's excellent mansion, which he has recently built and paid for, and fitted out.

"Oh, that I were a rich man."

Get angry with your neighbor, and think you have not a friend in the world. Shed a tear or two and take a walk in the burial ground, continually saying to yourself:

"When shall I be buried here?"

Sign a note for a friend, and never forget your kindness, and every hour in the day whisper to yourself—"I wonder if he will ever pay that note?"

Think everybody means to cheat you. Closely examine every bill you take, and doubt its being genuine until you have put your neighbor to a great deal of trouble. Put confidence in nobody, and believe every man you trade with to be a rogue.

Never accommodate, if you can possibly help it.

Never visit the sick, or afflicted, and never give a cent to assist the poor.

Buy as cheap as you can, and screw down to the lowest mill. Grind the faces and the hearts of the unfortunate.

Brood over your misfortunes, your lack of talents, and believe that at no distant day you will come to want. Let the work house be ever in your mind, with all the horrors of distress and poverty.

Follow these receipts strictly, and you will be miserable to your heart's content—if we may so speak—sick at heart, and at variance with the world. Nothing will cheer or encourage you, nothing will throw a gleam of sunshine or a ray of warmth into your heart.

When Whitelock was about to embark as Cromwell's envoy to Sweeden, in 1665, he was much disturbed in his mind as he rested in Harwich, on the preceding night' which was very stormy, while he reflected on the distracted state of the nation. A confidential servant slept in an adjoining bed, who finding that his master could not sleep said:

"Pray, sir, will you give me leave to ask you a question?"

"Certainly."

"Pray, sir, don't you think God governed the world very well before you came into it?"

"Undoubtedly."

"And pray, sir, don't you think that he will govern it quite as well when you are out of it?"

"Certainly."

"Then, sir, pray excuse me, but don't you think you may as well trust him to govern it as long as you are in it?"

To this question Whitelock had nothing to say, and turning about soon fell asleep.

A Toad Undressing.

Audubon relates that he once saw a toad undress himself. He comenced by pressing his elbows hard against his sides, and rubbing downward. After a few smart rubs his hide began to burst along his back. He kept on rubbing until he worked his skin all into folds on his sides and hips; then grasping one hind leg with his hands, he hauled off one leg of his pants the same as anybody would; then stripped off the other hind leg in the same way. He then took his cast off skin forward between his fore legs into his mouth and swallowed it; then by raising and lowering his head swallowing as his head came down, he stripped off his skin underneath, until it came to his four legs; then grasping one of these with the opposite hand by a single motion of the head, and while swallowing, he drew it from his neck and swallowed the whole.

BAD BOYS.—Many years ago, in a country town in Massachusetts, a teacher saw a boy come into his school, whom he knew to be one of the worst boys in town. He determined, if he could, to make a good boy of him. So he spoke kindly to him, and he behaved well that day. The next morning the Prudential Committee (as he was called) came in and said: "Mr. Towne, I here that that bad fellow, Bill Marcy, has come to your school. Turn him out at once. He will spoil the rest of the boys." "No, sir," replied the teacher, "I will leave the school if you say so, but cannot expel a boy so long as he behaves well." So he kept him and encouraged him, and confided in him, till Bill Marcy became one of the best boys in school. And afterwards, whenever William Marcy came from Washington, he took pains to go and see his old teacher, Salem Town, and thank him for having been the means of saving him and making him the man he was.

A young married women living in Huron County, O., retired to bed one night last week with her babe. To quiet it she had placed in its mouth a "sugar teat." During the night she dreamed it was choking, and that she tried to grasp the "teat" with her fingers, but could not. She then tried, as she supposed, to grasp it with her teeth, when the screams of the child awakened her. She found its face bloody, and that its nose was almost bitten through at the point. Medical aid was procured, and the child rendered comfortable, but the mother was almost inconsolable at the accident.

The walls of Paris are now placarded with posters, bearing in letters of enormous size the legend—"Don't go to the sea shore without Amelia." This indispensable companion is not, as might be supposed, an agreeable woman, but a species of the shoe adapted to walking on the sand.

AN editor, with an eye to payment for what he sells, indulges in this little bit of philosophy: "Every man ought to pay his debts, if he can. Every man ought to get married, if he can. Every man should do his work to suit his customers, if he can. Every wife should sometimes hold her tongue, if she can. Every lawyer should occasionally tell the truth, if he can. Every man ought to mind his own business and let other people's alone, if he can. Every man should take a newspaper, and pay for it, any how."

One of the most important items in the cost of a newspaper is the paper itself. Many newspapers do not obtain from their subscribers the price of the white paper alone. The entire expense must be covered by the receipts from the advertising.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,

AND

Hoofland's German Tonic.

Prepared by Dr. C. M. JACKSON,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Great Remedies for all Diseases

OF THE

LIVER, STOMACH, OR DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Hoofland's German Bitters

Is composed of the pure juices (or, as they are medicinally termed, Extracts) of Roots, Herbs and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entirely free from Alcoholic admixture of any kind.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,

Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.

Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

Hoofland's German Bitters.

In cases of nervous depression, when some alcoholic stimulus is necessary,

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC

should be used.

The Bitters or the Tonic are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues.

The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, etc., is very apt to have its functions deranged. The result of which is, that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhœa, Disease of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or Intestines.

DEBILITY,

Resulting from any Cause whatever; PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM, induced by Severe Labor, Hardships, Exposure, Fevers, etc.

There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole System, the Appetite is Strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.

Persons Advanced in Life.

And feeling the hand of time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of this BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

It is a well-established fact that fully one-half of the female portion of our population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health; or, to use their own expression, "never feel well." They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.

To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN

Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail.

Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. Those, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS.

Hon. Geo. W. Woodward,

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes:

Philadelphia, March 16, 1867.

"I find Hoofland's German Bitters' is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility, and want of nervous action in the system. Yours truly,

GEO. W. WOODWARD."

Hon. James Thompson.

Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, April 28, 1866.

"I consider Hoofland's German Bitters a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can testify this from my experience of it.

Yours, with respect,

JAMES THOMPSON."

From Rev. Joseph H. Kennard, D. D.,

Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

"Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir—I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have declined; but with a clear proof in various instances and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

Yours, very respectfully,

J. H. KENNARD,

Eighth, below Coates St.

From Rev. E. D. Fendall,

Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia.

I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable tonic, to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver. Yours truly,

E. D. FENDALL.

CAUTION.

Hoofland's German Remedies are counterfeited. See that the signature of C. M. JACKSON is on the wrapper of each bottle. All others are counterfeit.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK BUILDING,

PHILADELPHIA,

Where the general business of the Company is transacted, and to which all general correspondence should be addressed.

OFFICERS:

CLARENCE H. CLARK, President.

JAY COOKE, Finance and Executive Committee.

HENRY D. COOKE, Vice-President.

EMERSON W. PEET, Secretary and Actuary.

This Company, National in its character, offers by reason of its large Capital, Low Rates of Premium and New Tables, the most desirable means of insuring life yet presented to the public.

The rates of premium being largely reduced are made as favorable to the insurers as those of the best Mutual Companies, and avoid all the complications and uncertainties of Notes, Dividends, and the misunderstandings which the latter are so apt to cause the Policy-Holder.

Several new and attractive tables are now presented, which need only to be understood to prove acceptable to the public, such as the INCOME-PRODUCING POLICY and RETURN PREMIUM POLICY. In the former, the policy-holder not only secures a life insurance, payable at death, but will receive, if living, after a few years, an annual income equal to ten per cent. (10 per cent.) of the par of his policy. In the latter, the Company agrees to return to the assured the total amount of money he has paid in, in addition to the amount of his policy.

The attention of persons contemplating insuring their lives or increasing the amount of insurance they already have, is called to the special advantages offered by the National Life Insurance Com any.

WHAT EVERY HORSEMAN WANTS.—A good, cheap, and reliable Liniment. Such an article is

DR. TOBIAS'

Venetian Horse Liniment,

In Pint Bottles, at One Dollar.

For Lameness, Cuts, Galls, Colic, Sprains &c., warranted cheaper than any other. It is used by all the great Horsemen on Long Island Courses. It will not cure Ringbone nor Spavin, as there is no Liniment in existence that will. What it is stated to cure it possitively does. No owner of horses will be without it after trying one bottle. One dose revives and often saves the life of an overheated or driven horse. For Colic or Bellyache it has never failed. Just as sure as the sun rises, just so sure is this valuable Liniment to be the Horse Embrocation of the day. Use it one and all. Depot No. 56 Cortlandt St., New-York. Sold by all the druggists and storekeepers. 249w4
